“I am staring at the blue cover of the CNM catalog slightly intimidated. Will I find my career? Will I finally apply myself? Will I complete a degree? I tell myself the answer is yes!”

O U R  M I S S I O N
The CNM Foundation works to provide the extra financial assistance necessary for the citizens of CNM’s service area to obtain the quality educational opportunities they deserve. This support allows the College to meet its mission of promoting and providing higher education, skill development and workforce training relevant to contemporary needs within the district and the state.
THE IMPORTANCE OF EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY for all is more poignant than ever in light of the current economic recession. As stated in the President’s first address to a joint session of Congress on February 24, 2009:

"It is our responsibility as lawmakers and educators to make this system work. But it is the responsibility of every citizen to participate in it. And so tonight, I ask every American to commit to at least one year or more of higher education or career training. This can be community college or a four-year school; vocational training or an apprenticeship. But whatever the training may be, every American will need to get more than a high school diploma. And dropping out of high school is no longer an option. It's not just quitting on yourself; it's quitting on your country – and this country needs and values the talents of every American. That is why we will provide the support necessary for you to complete college and meet a new goal: by 2020, America will once again have the highest proportion of college graduates in the world."

Higher education is inextricably linked to economic and social success. CNM plays a significant role in the economic wellbeing of central New Mexico.

- CNM graduates find employment or continue education at a higher rate than graduates in the state’s peer institutions. This rate has held constant, ranging from 84% - 85%, for the past four years.
- Children of college graduates are 50% more likely to attend college themselves, providing advantages to future generations.
- Over the last five years, an average of 96% of CNM graduates have gained employment in their fields of study within 45 days to one year of graduation.
- Taxpayers see a real money “book” return of 13% on their annual investments in CNM and recover all investments in 10 years in the form of increased state and local tax receipts, as well as social savings, such as reductions in incarceration, welfare, health care support and others.
- The CNM service area economy owes roughly $899.3 million of its regional income to CNM operations and past student productivity effects. This figure amounts to roughly 4% of a typical year’s economic growth.

Data from Planning, Budget and Institutional Research (CNM) and the U.S. Department of Education.
THE CNM FOUNDATION is committed to providing support that helps the College continue to be a major economic force for central New Mexico and plays an essential role in the strategic direction of CNM. By drawing private financial support, the CNM Foundation builds relationships between the College and the community. Even more important than our critical functions of operations and fundraising, are the human factors of established relationships, mutual benefits, appropriate recognition and advancement of CNM's perceived role within the community. In championing the importance of a skilled workforce – from both an individual and collective standpoint – and the power of leveraging resources to create change, the CNM Foundation offers the promise of opportunity that higher education holds.

In the following pages, you will find out about ways that the CNM Foundation is helping the College to advance economic opportunity in our region. These are but a few real-world examples of how our Foundation and supporters help CNM to reach more students and assist in their success.
In these difficult economic times, it's reassuring to know that CNM and our students have supporters like you. Your appreciation for the power of education and your passion for helping students tap into that power are treasured resources in our efforts to change more lives for the better and build a stronger community in central New Mexico.

CNM is currently facing a new challenge of serving more students with fewer state funds. And many of our students are striving to overcome economic obstacles that jeopardize their efforts to improve their lives through education. As always, I'm thrilled and extremely grateful that we have the CNM Foundation and its donors providing such tremendous support to worthy students who are committed to educational success.

Your efforts and your generosity directly support CNM's goals of increasing student success and making higher education accessible and affordable for everyone.

It has been a challenging year for many of our students. I also know that the past year has been challenging for the remarkable people who donate to great causes nationwide. Few people have been insulated completely from the troubling economic conditions. That is why your continued support of the CNM Foundation and our College is inspiring and highly commendable. Together, we are lifting more people up, empowering them with education and preparing them to succeed in the workplace and in life.

As more and more people are learning about the high-quality educational opportunities available at CNM, we expect our enrollment to continue to grow in the coming years. As enrollment grows, so does CNM's ability to positively affect the lives of students, their families and in turn, our communities.

On behalf of CNM, I want to express my great appreciation for the CNM Foundation and all of the wonderful donors who bring so many dreams to life through education and generosity. Together, we'll continue to expand our vision of “Changing Lives, Building Community.”

Sincerely,

Dr. Kathie Winograd, CNM President
I extend a warm welcome to all of you who have joined the Central New Mexico Community College Foundation in “Changing Lives, Building Community” in 2008.

Fiscal Year 2007-2008 marked a banner year for the Foundation and our region’s flagship community college, CNM. Visionary leadership by our distinguished Board and passionate and dedicated staff has led to an unprecedented investment of more than $1 million from national foundation, corporate and community funding. This depth of support helps our students achieve the economic and social stability required to be successful in their academic, technical and vocational pursuits. Our students are committed to bettering their future – and supporters like you make it possible for them to enroll in school, stay on track and move toward graduating and becoming important contributors to our economy.

Perhaps at no time in recent memory has the need for accessible and affordable education and workforce training been more important than it is right now. As our world faces economic challenges, our students must make decisions to improve themselves to face a challenging employment environment. The kind of flexible and responsive education provided at CNM is one of the most productive and certain steps individuals can take to secure their future.

The Foundation believes in providing innovative financial support to those who take the initiative to work and learn and improve themselves through education. And we work daily to help CNM sustain and enhance the educational opportunities for which the college is nationally recognized. This past year, the Foundation has solicited significant assistance from national foundations to provide support for the college. National philanthropic partnerships have been forged and nurtured on behalf of New Mexico’s students, giving them access to more financial resources. This success is due to the Foundation’s commitment to supporting students holistically. Foundation supporters, both national and local, understand the variety of obstacles that our students face: financial literacy, cultural barriers and unforeseen financial obstacles in the midst of a changing economy. Financial commitments to the CNM Foundation help ensure that any student who wishes to pursue an education at CNM is able to do so.

The students at CNM would be left with a daunting void if it weren’t for the commitment of people like you – the CNM Foundation’s contributors, supporters and friends. On behalf of the CNM Foundation Board, I deeply appreciate your support of our students and the economic welfare of New Mexico. Your financial support makes a measureable difference in our community, at CNM in general, but most importantly to individual students striving for a better tomorrow.

Sincerely,

Glenn Wertheim, CNM Foundation Board President

CNM’s Center for Working Families is now a model program for community colleges that are seeking solutions to situations that have traditionally forced students to drop out of school. The Center identifies and breaks down barriers to family economic success by bundling income and work supports, financial services and asset-building devices with academic support services. Centers for Working Families are a strategy developed by the Annie E. Casey Foundation, prototyped by the AECF at the community college level successfully at CNM, and nationally through community agencies.

Our Center for Working Families began in January 2005 with funding from the Annie E. Casey Foundation as the only program of its type in a community college setting. The pilot program ended in 2008 with recognition as the most effective Center for Working Families in the nation. In its inaugural year, the program served 55 students – and in 2008 more than 600 students enrolled in the program. The delivery capacity of the Center for Working Families at the community college level proved to be a replicable model for helping students and families succeed. CNM recently hosted six other community colleges from around the nation interested in launching similar programs in their own college setting.

Recognizing the outstanding success of CNM’s Center for Working Families, Citi granted the first local corporate contribution to this CNM program in the amount of $25,000. This is a sound investment on the part of the Albuquerque business community to help train individuals to manage their money and plan for their futures, all of which plays a role in their academic success and the community’s economic recovery. This exciting program will allow the CNM Foundation to present a financial coaching model to other Centers for Working Families across the country and make a huge impact on families nationally.
The outstanding support by local philanthropists through the CNM Foundation has enabled the College to leverage funding nationally. In 2005, Jack and Donna Rust generously donated $250,000 to establish an emergency fund, called the Donna and Jack Rust Opportunity Scholarship. This fund helps students overcome unforeseen financial difficulties that could prevent them from completing their education. The Rust Opportunity Scholarships keep students in school by allowing them to focus on their studies, rather than worrying about an unexpected financial hardship. This significant gift from the Rusts enabled the CNM Foundation to attract national funding partners like the Lumina Foundation in Indiana. The Lumina Foundation coordinates Dreamkeepers, an emergency scholarship program that helps community college students who are at risk of dropping out because of unexpected financial crises. A challenge grant was awarded in light of the Rusts' generous donation. As the Dreamkeepers pilot project came to a close in 2008, CNM was recognized among the participating community colleges as the school that: raised the most additional emergency scholarship funding, distributed the most funds to students and had one of the highest retention rates among Dreamkeepers participants, at 89%. “The Rust Opportunity Scholarship has proven to be a valuable tool to assist students who are struggling and considering dropping out. I rely on this funding to help students with unexpected situations; when they’ve suddenly found themselves in financial crises due to job loss, medical problems, or unanticipated child care issues. We have been able to assist with all types of expenses including rent, utilities and food. The best part is that our data shows that this assistance strongly affects our ability to retain students and help them graduate,” said Fredreka Lucero, Scholarship Advisor in the CNM Financial Aid Office.

This success is largely due to the steps the CNM Foundation took to expand the impact that emergency funding would provide for students. Through concentrated efforts, the CNM Foundation links students who receive emergency support to the caring wraparound services provided by CNM’s Center for Working Families (see the previous page for program details) and other support services that help sustain the positive results of emergency assistance. The students are offered access to financial literacy classes and one-on-one coaching and are linked with someone on campus who can be their champion.

What’s even more exceptional is that Jack and Donna Rust, the original donors to CNM’s emergency support to students, have committed another $250,000 to build an endowment for the Donna and Jack Rust Opportunity Scholarship so that this compassionate support for students will exist in perpetuity.
The CNM Foundation’s work is guided by the philosophy that education is the pathway out of poverty. In order to bring light to this pathway, the root obstacles to educational access must be identified and shattered. Focusing on access and opportunity, many of the Foundation’s programs have assisted in enrolling and retaining minority and low-income populations in adult education. In 2008, this approach was recognized by the American Indian Education Foundation, a national funding partner whose program offices are in South Dakota.

For many community college students, higher education is intimidating and overwhelming. For many Native Americans, this time of transition can be even more stressful because there is often a need for financial assistance made worse by a sense of isolation. CNM enrolls more than 1,600 Native American students, a number that has grown steadily in the past decade, more than doubling between the 1996-1997 school-year and the 2007-2008 term. One important recruitment and retention tool is the financial assistance program from the American Indian Education Foundation. In the fall of 2008, the Albuquerque Journal reported that CNM’s minority enrollment increased by 9.4% as a result of this program.

Emergency funds from the American Indian Education Foundation are provided to Native American students at CNM for things such as testing and certification fees, childcare expenses, transportation costs, healthcare expenses and daily living expenses – all of which are essential to keeping students in school. Additionally, a challenge grant was issued, matching funds with local partners to provide significant scholarship support. As the first local corporate contributor to the program, Jennifer Thomas, President of Bank of Albuquerque noted, “At Bank of Albuquerque, our community is our livelihood and serving our community is more than a commitment, it is our culture. For that reason, we believe in giving back every day and in many different ways. We are pleased to support key initiatives that not only benefit the social and economic welfare of our community, but that also leverage even more support, such as the AIEF program that provides matching funds.”

The American Indian Education Foundation’s belief and investment in CNM is a testament to the emphasis we place on educational opportunity. With strong access and continuing support, more individuals can realize their educational and career potential, fulfill their hopes and dreams and serve as role models for their children, peers, community and the generations to come.
“I got my start at CNM!”

Former students cherish their time at CNM, whether they enter the job market after leaving campus or continue on to a four-year institution. The CNM Foundation recognizes that for many graduates, CNM was the initial breakthrough into a higher education setting.

The CNM Alumni Association, operated under the CNM Foundation, focuses on building a strong alumni base to advance the growth of CNM, fostering alumni relationships to support career success for all CNM graduates, and involving alumni in service activities for potential and current CNM students. The association offers a variety of opportunities to get involved including special alumni events, campus privileges and networking opportunities. Through this association, CNM is fostering relationships with alumni to celebrate their accomplishments and become true advocates of the College.

Experiences shared by former students help current and potential students navigate their own educational course. Lauri Lineweaver enrolled at CNM because it would allow her to continue working while pursuing an education. In 2002, Lauri graduated from CNM with her Associate’s Degree in Nursing. She continued on with her education to earn a Bachelor’s Degree and a Master’s Degree in Nursing Education. Today, Lauri is an Education Resource Nurse and Master Clinical Instructor for Presbyterian Healthcare Services’ Nursing Education Program, as well as in the Cardiac Critical Care Unit, where she holds national nursing certifications in critical care and cardiac surgery.

Marshall Shore began taking college level courses at CNM during his sophomore year in high school. He graduated early with his GED, completed his Associate’s Degree in the fall of 2007, and is now a full-time Technical Writer for New Mexico Educators Federal Credit Union. He is currently attending UNM to complete his Bachelor’s Degree in Business Administration.

The CNM Alumni Association ignites a sense of community for former students and highlights the overall impact CNM has on the workforce and economy. Alumni offer the College volunteer, instructional and financial support, making it an invaluable resource for CNM and the Albuquerque community. The CNM Alumni Association offers free membership to those who graduated from CNM with their Associate’s Degree or program certificate. Former TVI/CNM students interested in joining the CNM Alumni Association can email alumni@cnm.edu or call (505) 224-4685. Wells Fargo was again this year’s Annual Donor Appreciation Dinner sponsor, giving donors an opportunity to hear first hand from seven CNM students on how their investment changed lives and helped build community. Student speakers are pictured here with Foundation President Glenn Wertheim, President Winograd and Regional Vice President of Wells Fargo, Greg Winegardner.

Culinary Arts students helped the Foundation thank donors this year by baking special Valentine’s Day treats.
Ways to Give

Your gift to the CNM Foundation will support our work today and our mission in the years to come. We invite you to consider some of the following giving opportunities. We thank you for your generosity and your gift will be acknowledged for your tax records.

Gifts of Cash
A gift of cash is the most common and easiest way to support the CNM Foundation. You can make a gift of cash by sending a check to the address listed below, or if you are a CNM employee, you can give through payroll deduction. Contact the CNM Foundation for more details.

Make your check payable to the CNM Foundation, designated for the appropriate purpose and mail to:

CNM Foundation • 525 Buena Vista SE, Albuquerque, NM 87106

Credit Card Contributions
You can also make a gift by credit card by calling the CNM Foundation at (505) 224-4685.

Matching Gifts
Many national and local corporations will match their employees’ gifts to the CNM Foundation dollar-for-dollar, doubling the power of your gift. Contact your employer for details about your company or organization’s matching gift program.

A Gift in Memory or in Honor
Honor someone special or recognize an important event or date with a memorial or commemorative gift.

Gifts of Stock or Securities
Often a gift can be made with little more than a phone call to your stockbroker.

Wills and Bequests
Leave a legacy or bequest for the CNM Foundation in your will.

Life Insurance
If you have a life insurance policy that you no longer need, consider using it to support student success at CNM. Simply designate the CNM Foundation as the beneficiary of the policy.

Gifts of Equipment and Materials
Equipment or materials in good condition can be used in the classroom or other program support and is invaluable to the success of CNM.

If you have any questions about making a gift to the CNM Foundation, we will be pleased to assist you. Please call us at (505) 224-4685.
